We'll Go To UN ---Zorin

GENEVA (UPI)—Russia and its Communist satellites abruptly walked out of the 10-nation disarmament conference today in an obviously rehearsed manwhich blocked hearing of new Western proposals and threw the parley into angry turmoil. Chief Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin and the entire Communist bloc stalked from the meeting room vowing to place the whole issue before the United Nations General Assembly as French Ambassador Jules Moch shouted "Hoodlum-

The Old Paradox

MR. DIEFENBAKER AND MR. Pearson are right in saying that Canada should be able to amend its own constitution

Under the existing arrangement, relic of colonial times, the British North America Act is amended by the British Parliament, at the request of the Canadian Parliament. This Mr. Diefenbaker calls a "political paradox" inconsistent with Canada's present independent status. But as Mr. Pearson adds, Britain has no wish to maintain the paradox. On the contrary, it is embarrassed by what appears to be, but is not, its occasional interference in Canada's affairs.

The British Parliament amends our constitution whenever it is asked to do so, automatically and with no lebate at Westminster. For Britain this action is purely formal. For Canada, however, it is still an un solved problem, since we have never been able to agree on a better method of constitutional amendment.

Under the St. Laurent Government some progress was made in a limited area. The Canadian Parlia-ment assumed the right to amend the constitution without consulting the provinces, where it relates to matters solely under federal jurisdiction. In all matters touching the jurisdiction of the provinces they must agree.

For some quarter of a century our national and provincial Govern-ments have tried to work out some arrangement by which they would jointly agree on a constitutional amendment to become law without British approval. Always these efforts have failed.

Not only Quebec but sometimes other provinces still hold to the "compact theory" of Confederation. They argue that the British North America Act which created Canada represents a contract between the original colonies and cannot be altered by a comma unless all of them agree. Since they can rarely agree unanimously, each one holds a veto over the constitution, according to this theory.

Of course the theory is out of date and unworkable under modern conditions. No nation can function satisfactorily if one of its units, perhaps a single small province, veto the will of the vast majority. But if most Canadians do not regard change in the constitution should be made without wide agreement throughout the nation.

The practical problem is to decide what majority of the provinces is required. Should the constitution be amended in Canada with the ap- of course, and perproval of six provinces, a simple mahaps are read in many jority, or of two-thirds of the ten, garts of the country, or some other fraction?

But the average child

Over and over again these ouestions have been argued between the national and provincial Governments with no agreement and the old paradox, as Mr. Diefenbaker calls it, remains to embarrass Britain and make Canada appear as a nation not in full control of its own business.

Probably nothing will come immediately from the latest statements of the two Canadian party leaders but something has been accom-plished.

Both parties agree that the constitution should be moved from London to Ottawa: Both agree that this change would not weaken the ties between Britain and Canada in the least. The demand for a purely Canadian constitution is now strictly bi-partisan.

That being so, the time has come for another attempt by the two levels of government to work out a new formula of constitutional amendment. The objections of one or two provinces cannot be allowed to stand in the way.

If we wish The strategical policy of encircling Communism with military bases on the will have to do far more in the future than we have in the past to help our Asian friends in meeting these problems." periphery was conceived immediately after the Second World War, in the late 40s, when the United States still had a monopoly of the atom bomb and was not only invulnerable itself but irresistible on the offensive.

In 1949 the Soviet Union broke the monopoly, and in the years that followed acquired a nuclear stockpile and the airplanes and missiles to carry nuclear bombs. Then the strategical policy of peripheral containment was bound to become increasingly unworkable. This meant that the time lad come for a reappraisal of the strategical policy which rested on our lost monopoly.

for the Government to defend the existing unemployment situation (which, of course, is not its fault by any means) with the bland statement that the situation was much worse under a Liberal Government between 1935 and 1940. One might as well try to find comfort in the fact that the situation was still worse before 1935 under the Conservative Government of the late Lord Bennett. The reappraisal was not made, and accordingly, the state department and the Pentagon addressed themselves to the task of persuading and cajoling the peripheral countries to eschew neutralism in the cold war, to line up with What have these figures got to do with our problem today? IN the short time remaining to him the Chinese heartland, the United States made alliances and established bases.

To our surprise we found that as we established ourselves on this dangerous periphery, we became increasingly unpopular, and the more arms and money and personnel we pumped in, the more the masses of the people and the intel-lectuals to whom they listened became neutralist and anti-American and fellowular, and the more arms and money

It was stupid of us to be surprised, and very stupid to allow ourselves to think that these ungrateful people would be loving and loyal if it were not for the Communist agitators from Moscow

Stark Fact

We refused to look at the stark and dominating fact that once the Soviet Union had become a nuclear power, the peripheral countries were defenceless. They could not be defended by "mas sive retaliation" because neither our European allies in NATO nor Canada ourselves in North America were in a position to defend them against Soviet counter-retaliation.

We may not like to say it out loud, even to see it at all, but there is a profound, weakness in a strategical the recent meeting, the military plantroubles as the American position in the policy, which rests on bases that are ners are working on the problem. Health Insurance

Your editorial of June 20 on health

neither Premier Douglas nor myself have ever suggested that "no Canadians were now covered by medical insur-ance." We have said, and this you will find confirmed in the November issue of the B.C. Medical Journal, that approximately 50% of the population have no prepaid coverage. This is a fact which even your editorial cannot explain

1. A private insurance company plan to cover those over 65 (approximately 100,000 in British Columbia with no coverage). Monthly prepayment for two people, 35, and for this the only coverage was surgical and medical accounts only while the patient was in hospital and only up to certain limited amounts. This is "satisfactory economic coverage? !" The secret here is, of course, the fact that the company is not in business to give coverage, it is in business to make a profit out of sickness.

 Next, let us take the MSI open enrollment plan we have heard so much about recently and which according to the doctors themselves (B.C Medical Journal, December, 1959) is "doctor controlled." The family rate is $7 per month and after they list about a dozen things that are "not covered" the final words which are underlined are "Home and office visits in case of illness are not

In other words, after paying the heavy premium the service which is of vital importance to most families is "not covered!"

Let us face the facts, there is only one way to provide complete coverage with no exclusions and no "extra billing," which is a feature of some private plans for 100% of the people in good times and bad, and that is by a Pro cial or National plan.

The inference in your editorial that the patient's right to choose his doctor and the so called doctor-patient relationship will be affected, is completely with-out foundation, and you know full well that in all national health schemes now in force in many parts of the world these rights have not been affected in any way whatsoever.

The plain fact is that the present hodge-podge of expensive so called pre-paid plans have completely failed to no prepaid coverage. This is a fact provide satisfactory coverage to every which even your editorial cannot explain citizen. A CCF government will introduce a true prepaid comprehensive plan that will protect 100% not 50% of our people. It will be efficient and far plans is plain nonsense. Let us take two examples of the plans.

travelling in Europe,

At Offenburg, a few nights before, I had walked from our newly built hotel around a corner and found weed-grown desolation in that little German town. The manager of the hotel had explained it to me. The city was a marshalling point, an important juncture of railways bringing supplies to Germany. It had been heavily bombed.

Much had been replaced with new con struction. Some of the old battered remnants of buildings remained. Among them a casual eye could pick out the makeshift shelters, piano-box size, which homeles people had built against still standing walls as protection from the elements. They were formed of old, charred boards, bits of tin, with newspapers spread thick for beds. War seemed to choose no favorites.

MONTE ROBERTS

A pair of names were linked together last week in a way discernible only to an aged eye with a good memory.

One name was Tam Htab, which appeared in this space
Friday with reference to a very wise old man.
The second name was John Sebastian Butterfield, who has proven himself a very wise young man by winning high honors at the University of British Columbia.

This will come as no surprise to those who knew Mr. Surprise to those who knew Mr.

Butterfield's father, either in person or as author of a daily (sometimes) piece in The Vancouver Daily Province of yesteryear, entitled THE COMMON ROUND by J. Butterfield.

It was a happy coincidence that I used the name Tam Htab in this space the day before I learned of the honor accorded J. Butterfield's son.

For Tam Htab was created by Butterfield senior as the mnist splashed in his bath and searched for a name to give a Persian philosopher who was to act as spokesman for the columnist. It chanced that the bath mat was upside down, and thus was born Tam Htab, who gained wide fame and credence throughout B.C.

Thousands of my generation will remember the writings of James Butterfield. Not so many remember im in person, an extroverted, self-willed, roving-eyes, hellfor-leather columnist of an extinct breed.

Early in his career as a caustic commentator, Jim de-veloped what was then known politely as a lung ailment was a chain smoker with no nonsense about pausing to light matches).

His doctor told him he had less than six months to live, so Butterfield began to capital L—I—V—E, and continued to do so for between 20 and 30 years before he was finally put beneath the sod, with a 40-ounce bottle of Demerrara runs clasped in his arms, and another rapidly evaporating as the pallbearers drove back from the cemetery. Both bottles were provises of his will.

as the pallbearers drove back from the cemetery. Both bottles were provisos of his will.

Jim Butterfield's purpose in life was to live it to the hilt, and his message in the Common Round was a sneer for the hypocrite, the stuffed shirt, and for almost anything that anyone else favored—including dogs, which he publicly derided and privately became maudin about.

I wish I could say Jim gave me words of wisdom in my youth. But my closest contact with him was when he sold me his slightly used golf clubs (he had been told to play golf for his health) for a ridiculously low sum. "I don't seem to have the right mentality for this game," he said. "Perhaps you have."

It took me 20 years to find out what he meant.

All hall, then, to John Sebastian, the son of J. Butte field. May he be blessed with the wisdom of Tam Htab.

First to congratulate him was Victoria naturalist Free-

"We'll co-operate," Wil-liam K. Macrae, general manager of the Downtown Vancouver Parking Corporation said today in commenting on a Victoria city council decision to find out how the non-profit organ-

But, he added, it would be up to the DVPC directors to decide whether or not the Vancouver system would be ex-tended to Victoria.

NEW ATTACK

Victoria aldermen last week decided to approach the Van-couver organization as part of a new attack on the downtown parking problem following ratepayers rejection of the $1,000,000 View Street mall and cor park proposal.

Here's how the Vancouver system works: In 1948 city ratepayers approved a $1,000,-000 bylaw for purchasing offstreet parking sites.

After they were purchased, a deal was made with the Downtown Business Association to manage them for the city as a civic enterprise.

KAMLOOPS The Trans-Canada Highway Yellowhead Route Association, pressing for a first-rate highway linking Saskatoon and Edmonton with the West Coast, via the Yellow head Pass, has asked that the need for a national highway project be discussed at the July federal provincial conference.

Delegates also asked that the B.C. highways minister allocate a portion of his budget annually to repair portions of the present Yellowhead Highway, described as dangerous to a point where tourists using it never want to return over the route again.

Isolationist Dies

ALEXANDRIA, Minn. (AP) Former U.S. senator Hen-drik Shipstead of Minnesota, an ardent isolationist of the pre-Second World War era and once among the Senate's most powerful members, died in his sleep here Sunday.

S. Truman last night called for creation of an international police force "strong enough to undertake such police ac-tion as the United Nations deems necessary to maintain

He also implied that such private conferences as the ill-fated Paris summit talks between East and West be abandoned in favor of sessions conducted within the framework of the U.N.

Pat Boone Special at 9.30; 'After Hours' Comedy Starts at 10

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

ENJOYABLE Right at the outset I would three stress that I enjoyed the CRC's First Person comedy. Final at Furnell" last Wednesday night. Yes, I did paced and chock a block with humorous lines and Ramar, 13, Barry Morse, Bill Glover, Deborah Turnbull, Gillie Ferwick and John Maddison were clever enough to recognize a tightrope when they saw one and straddled

However, that over, I would take playwright Hall

Now no one should know better than Mr. Hall that to the plot at the penultimate moment of the denoue ment and have him saye the hero from a position that would have daunted the vaunted wisdom of a

This, in all forms of fiction, is considered to be tantamount to telling on a lady or donning a baseball mitt for cricket. One of those unwritten rules, you know. Poor form, and all that. By proper standards the hero must work out his own solution otherwise let's face it he really isn't much of a hero.

And this is my true complaint if the hero is to be aided by another person then that person must be produced early on in the play in order that the palpitating audience is given all the component parts of the plot so that it may out guess the playwright and divine the ending beforehand if it enough.

Surely the johnny come Jately in "Final at Furnell" could have entered during the first act and, perhaps, kept trying to contact the worried Sam who was always brushing him off. Then when he finally made the pro offer, K would have been "fair play" or a reasonable facsimilie thereof.

Nonetheless, the half-hour was most engaging which, as everyone whose brains aren't coddled would agree, is a delightful exception to the rule in these dog days of TV's summer dogs.

A SOFT SIGH And, finally, a faint sigh for a vanished boyhood relived vicariously in Thursday night's gentle "Secret World of Eddie Hodges."

Somehow Jackie Gleason seemed exactly right for the narrator, or perhaps my pleasure merely stemmed from just seeing Gleason again on TV. He is quite a

The dances, such as young Eddie's chore with the ballet in the "Simon Says" number as choreographed by Peter Gennaro, had lilt and imagination. I also enjoyed the lad's "Faraway Places" and his "I Like the Likes of You" with the charmingly effervescent Janis Paige. Veteran comic Bert Lahr as the Postman Boris Karloff as Capt. Hook and Hugh O'Brien's. Wyatt in 1935's "The Call of the Wild." Earp were all effective.

Certainly in TV's wild world of gunfights, robberies brawls, adulteries, rapes and other assorted visciousness "The Secret World of Eddie Hodges" was as gentle and nostalgic as a forgotten flower found pressed between the pages of a beloved book

Arson Destroys 30 Buildings

GLADE, B.C. (CP) The fire which wiped out 30 build-ings in this Kootenay community early Saturday was caused by arson, a team of investigators from the criminal investigation branch of the RCMP said Saturday night. They said they found two kerosene-soaked wicks which failed to ignite. The community, located 30 miles northeast of Trail, is settled by a mixture of orthodox and Sons of Freedom Doukhobors. The section destroved was settled by memrs of both factions.

In the past, the Freedomites have been blamed for incen-diary attacks on the orthodox of Glade feel certain a resident within the community is re onsible for the fire.

Destruction was confined to back injuries in a traffic acbarns, garages, farm implecident ments, one vehicle, storage sheds and other smaller build ling in a truck with Knowles, were identified as Georgina Hindle and Bob Knowles, A small number of livestock was also lost.

The Many Hats of Victoria's 1960 'Good Citizen,' Frank Ross

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1960-PAGE 17

MONTE ROBERTS

A pair of names were linked together last week in a way discernible only to an aged eye with a good memory.

One name was Tam Htab, which appeared in this space Friday with reference to a very wise old man. The second name was John Sebastian Butterfield, who has proven himself a very wise young man by winning high honors at the University of British Columbia.

This will come as no surprise to those who knew Mr. Butterfield's father, either in person or as author of a daily (sometimes) piece in The Vancouver Daily Province of yesteryear, entitled THE COMMON ROUND by J. Butter-

Htab in this space the day before I learned of the honor accorded J. Butterfield's son.

For Tam Htab was created by Butterfield senior as the plumnist splashed in his bath and searched for a name to give a Persian philosopher who was to act as spokesman for the columnist. It chanced that the bath mat was upside down, and thus was born Tam Htab, who gained wide fame and credence throughout B.C.

Thousands of my generation will remember the writings of James Butterfield. Not so many remember him in person, an extroverted, self-willed, roving-eyes, hell-for-leather columnist of an extinct breed.

Early in his career as a caustic commentator, Jim de eloped what was then known politely as a lung ailment (he was a chain smoker with no nonsense about pausing the was a chain smoker with no nonsense about pausing to light matches).

His doctor told him he had less than six months to live, so Butterfield began to capital L.—I.—V.—E., and continued to do so for between 20 and 30 years before he was finally put beneath the sod, with a 40-ounce bottle of Demerrara rum clasped in his arms, and another rapidly evaporating as the pallbearers drove back from the cemetery. Both bottles were provisos of his will.

Jim Butterfield's purpose in life was to live it to the hilt, and his message in the Common Round was a sneer for the hypocrite, the stuffed shirt, and for almost anything that anyone else favored—including dogs, which he publicly derided and privately became maudiin about.

I wish I could say Jim gave me words of wisdom in play golf for his health) for a ridiculously low sum.

"I don't seem to have the right mentality for this ne," he said. "Perhaps you have." (
It took me 20 years to find out what he meant.

All hall, then, to John Sebastian, the son of J. Butter-field. May he be blessed with the wisdom of Tam Htab.

"We'll co-operate," William K. Macrae, general manager of the Downtown Vancouver Parking Corporation said today in commenting on a Victoria city council decision to find out how the non-profit organ-

But, he added, it would be up to the DVPC directors to decide whether or not the Vancouver system would be ex-tended to Victoria.

NEW ATTACK

Victoria aldermen last week decided to approach the Vancouver organization as part of a new attack on the downtown purking problem following ratepayers rejection of the $1,000,000 View Street mall and cer park proposal.

Here's how the Vancouver system works: In 1948 city ratepayers approved a $1,000,000 bylaw for purchasing offstreet parking sites.

After they were purchased, a deal was made with the Downtown Business Association to manage them for the city as a civic enterprise.

Works like magic!

Man-Tan contains no iodine. Its revolutionary action depends on Protosol, a remarkable discovery which starts to work the instant it comes in contact with the top layers of human skin. Protosol takes about six hours to work . . . makes you look tan for days.

Tested by doctors The MAN-TAN formula has been laboratory tested and clin cally matologists it was demonstrated safe, non-irritating, on all types of normal skin—as well as remarkably effective.

Man-Tan works as well and as safely on fair-skinned red-heads who could never get a tan in the sun as on olive-skinned eople. May be used even around he eyes and on tender skin. New MAN-TAN, used as
